The lawyer's motto—Dead, not words.

A man is known by the company he keeps out of.

A watering place—A horse-trough by the roadside.

Reversible cuffs—Boxing one ear and thrashing the other also.

A smile over a dog's mouth acts as a smokes to his pants.

Many of the richest planters of San Domingo live on coffee grounds.

Never write the word "finis" backward. It will be a "sin if" you do.

A pig was never known to wash, but a great many people have seen the pig iron.

A doctor down in Connecticut poisoned himself on another day. "Gone to meet his patients."

Some people are never satisfied. A Mar- ket street man advertises, "I want another hand."—Philistines.

A river's mouth is larger than its head, the river has arms, but no hands, and a man can have a foot, but no legs. Queer, isn't it?

"What's in store?" asks Shakespeare. You just wait. William, until you see a wall-eyed man dropping a hairy revolver on you.

The weather must have been getting cold when Adam and Eve first tasted that forbidden fruit, for apples were not eaten until the fall.—Boston Times.

Frogs read somewhere that dyspepsia should eat their food dry. It never asks for champagne now without an injunction to the water to keep the case.—Terre Haute Saturday Night.

Do you drink beer? Not but the man in my neighborhood does. Once, he thinks beer, until it makes him bear at every one near; he's a gay gambler, and will soon find his bear.—Terre Haute Saturday Night.

An American girl who objected to taking her admirer in marriage on account of his long name, said she didn't mind taking all of the man, but she couldn't take more than half the name.—Kentucky New Era.

Are you fond of cheese? No, but my sweetheart, Elsie, who sings like a breeze, and whom I often squeeze, is so fond of cheese that her breath makes me sneeze till I fall over in a fit of a press to disease.—Balt. Sun.

"When the swallow homeward flies, 'tis when the moon is on the rye," said the poet, a gently waving, Anna-does—"I will meet you at the gate," thought it may be rather late, and the hundredth time pony-tail in your ear.

That genial old proselytizer manufacturer who wrote, "All work and no play makes Jack a dull boy," forgot to add that all play and no work makes Jack a professional sport at 20 years of age, and lands him in the penitentiary at 33.

Was nature cruel when she lashed the pupil of the eye?—Agents' Herald. I think so. She seems to have intended to teach me the lesson of love with my eyes, but I have been told that any one who uses this medicine, One Dollar a bottle is a small consideration when health is in question. The clergymen say he is going to introduce Dr. Kennedy's "Favorite Remedy" among his people. He can't do better.

ing imagination. Never does any harm, because nobody believes 'em."

"What?"

"Staf." Nobody takes any stock in 'em, but they read 'em all the same."

"What have you done in this line?"

"I've written all the boss-snake yarns in the West for the last ten years."

"Bring any 'sketches' with you?"

"Well, no; but I can get one up in a few moments."

He sat down in the religious editor's place, and in five minutes had the following, bearing an up-State date-line:

"On the morning of Wednesday of this week little Eva Scryvay, the two-year-old daughter of one of the wealthiest and most industrial members of this community, met with an adventure which might be regarded as incredible but for the fact that it is vouched for by reliable witnesses. She got lost in a neighboring forest and was clasped by a huge snake, which emerged from a deserted hut in a wild ravine, where it had been leading her life, subsisting on wild herbs and living a precarious income by telling fortunes. When the child saw the terrible monster she was almost paralyzed by fright, but with a superhuman effort regained possession of her faculties and began to flee. She was, however, overtaken by the serpent pursued and caught up with her before she had gone ten miles. Then he opened his mouth and prepared to devour her, when all at once his attitude changed. Instead of carrying out this resolution, to the exceeding surprise of his intended victim the monster unspooled her hair and passed her neck cheeks, and, gently releasing a $7,000 diamond brooch from her throat, pinned it to her shirt front and walked reflectively away. The friends of the child found her soon afterward, and on learning her strange story went to look for his workshop. They discovered him sitting in front of his hut studying the Cape May time table, with a view to becoming a watering place hotel elect."

The editor assured Mr. Lyne that he possessed too much genius to be permitted to run at large, so he employed him to write ordinary notices. Exchange.

Archery seems to have as suddenly lost its popularity as it was acquired. In the least it is almost an amusement of the past, and new and more exciting pastures have superseded it.

Knowledge will always predominate over ignorance, as man governs the outer animals.

HONORED AND BLEST.

When a band of eminent physicians and chemists announced the discovery that by combining some well-known valuable remedies, the most wonderful medicine was produced, which would cure such a wide range of diseases that most all other remedies could be dispensed with, many were skeptical; but proof of its merits by actual trial has dispelled all doubt, and to the discoverers of that great medicine Hop Bitters, are honored and blessed by all as benefactors.—Democrat.

"They are sheets of acetate. A Methodist clergyman of Hartford, Conn., writes Dr. David Kennedy of Rondout, N. Y., that "Favorite Remedy" cured him of Chronic Liver Disease and Indigestion, from which he had suffered for a long time. This was splendid, but nothing more than anyone may expect who uses this medicine. One Dollar a bottle is a small consideration when health is in question. The clergymen say he is going to introduce Dr. Kennedy's "Favorite Remedy" among his people. He can't do better.
